STAR-ADVERTISER TO OFFER NEW USA TODAY HAWAII EDITION

New agreement reaffirms commitment to give Hawaii readers the most timely news and information

HONOLULU – Beginning Monday, May 21, a new Hawaii Edition of USA TODAY will be printed locally by The Honolulu Star-Advertiser. The edition will include all four sections of the mainland editions of USA TODAY – News, Money, Sports and Life – condensed into two 12-page sections. The Hawaii Edition will also feature two pages of local news. The new Hawaii Edition is the fruit of a new relationship between USA TODAY and The Honolulu Star-Advertiser that will give Hawaii residents and visitors more timely news and information.

Dennis Francis, publisher of The Honolulu Star-Advertiser, said, “We are delighted to have concluded this agreement with USA TODAY. It enables us to provide Hawaii with more timely access to a great national newspaper and to offer it to Star-Advertiser print subscribers at a very affordable rate.”

Susie Ellwood, executive vice president and general manager of USA TODAY, said, “Hawaii is an important market for USA TODAY and it is a pleasure for us to offer The Honolulu Star-Advertiser – Hawaii’s most comprehensive, trusted source of news and information – the opportunity to bring USA TODAY to Hawaii visitors and residents on a truly timely basis.”

Francis noted that the local content in the Hawaii Edition of USA TODAY – which will run on pages 2 and 3 – “will be designed specifically for the primary audience of USA TODAY in Hawaii, which consists mainly of visitors to our Islands,” he said.

Star-Advertiser home-delivery subscribers will be offered the USA TODAY Hawaii Edition for only $5 a month.
